CANNED DECIDUOUS FRUIT: PRODUCTION AND TRADE STATISTICS IN SELECTED COUNTRIES

This publication is one in a series of such compendiums covering world production and trade statistics for horticultural products. Canned fruit items covered in this issue are apples, apricots, cherries, fruit mixtures, peaches, pears, and plums and prunes. Production statistics are limited to major producing countries and include all of the above commodities. Trade statistics include both major producing and consuming countries for canned apricots, fruit mixtures, peaches and pears, as well as pineapple.

The annual canned deciduous fruit packs in the Southern Hemisphere countries (Australia, South Africa, etc.) generally commence in November or December of each year and become seasonally heavy in the following January or February. For the purposes of the packs tables shown in this compendium, such packs are aligned with the U.S. packing season, which commences the following summer. For example, the Southern Hemisphere packs completed in early 1978 are shown under the column for 1978.

The United States is, by far, the world's leading commercial producer of canned deciduous fruits, averaging well over half of the total production of the principal producing countries. South Africa, Greece, Italy, and Australia are the other major world producers. Canned deciduous fruit output peaked in 1969 at 138 million cases when the United States had a record pack of over 96 million cases. At only 99.1 million cases, the 1978 pack was the lowest in many years, with U.S. output falling below 50 million cases.

The United States ranks second to South Africa as an exporter of canned deciduous fruits and does not rank as the primary exporter of any one category. Normally, the number one exporters are Spain for apricots, Italy for fruit mixtures, South Africa for peaches, and either Italy or Australia for pears. The two principal exporters of canned pineapples are the Philippines and Thailand.

West Germany is the world's largest importer of canned deciduous fruits, followed by the United Kingdom, France, and Canada. The United States is the largest importer of canned pineapple, importing almost twice as much as the second largest importer, West Germany.

Statistical data used in this publication were converted from original units to cases of 24 2-1/2 size cans on a basis of 45 pounds (20.41 kilograms) per case. Dashes in the statistical tables signify that data are either negligible, unavailable, or not separately identified. Unless otherwise specified, data sources are U.S. agricultural attache reports for production and official country trade publications for trade.
